

Can You See God?

One day a 6-year-old girl was sitting in the classroom. The teacher was trying to explain evolution to the children. The teacher asked a little boy, "Tommy, do you see the tree outside?" "Yes," said Tommy. The teacher asked, "Tommy, do you see the grass outside?" Again, Tommy said, "Yes." The teacher said, "Go outside and look up and see if you can see the sky." Tommy returned a few minutes later and said, "Yes, I saw the sky." The teacher asked, "Did you see God?" Tommy said, "No." "That's my point," said the teacher, "We can't see God because He isn't there."

A little girl spoke up and wanted to ask Tommy some questions. The teacher agreed, and the little girl asked, "Tommy, do you see the tree outside?" Tommy said, "Yes." She asked, "Tommy, do you see the grass outside?" Tommy, getting tired of the questions by this time, said, "Yes." She asked, "Tommy, do you see the teacher?" Tommy said, "Yes." She asked, "Do you see her brain?" Tommy said, "No." She asked, "Does that mean she doesn't have one?"

Hebrews 11:1 says, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." The third verse adds, "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear." The portrait of the Creator that emerges from mankind's scientific data is uncannily consistent with the description of the God whose identity is spelled out in the pages of the Bible. Psalm 19:1-3 says, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard." In the New Testament, Romans 1:20 declares, "For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse." When someone willfully disregards the information that so eloquently demonstrates intelligence and purpose, they are like the one spoken of in Psalm 14:1: "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." Putting your trust in the God of the Bible is nothing less than the most rational and natural decision you could make, do not let anyone talk you out of your faith.
